2. Are employees required to do a new assessment if the parameters of travel have changed?

- A. Yes. Immigration laws can change without notice. If the circumstances of the trip change (e.g., duration of travel, work location, activities performed in the host country, etc), employees are required to complete a new IDT assessment. (your answer) Correct!
- B. Maybe. It depends when the traveling employee completed his/her last assessment and whether the purpose of the trip has changed.
- C. No. As long as you have completed a previous assessment, a new assessment is not required.
